

Spreading of Cultures in Africa where twins – ten good or ten bad – play a role.

Because an image often says more than a thousand words, we have two maps of Lagercrantz overlaid on each other.

- >> A black dot means twins are welcome.
- >> A red dot means both twins are killed.
- >> A red circle means one of the twins is killed.

Lagercrantz draws this knowledge not only from professional anthropological reports. He also uses reports from travelers, government officials, missionaries and others who for one or another reason came into contact with a people and made notes about the handling of twins. Lagercrantz collected about 420 reports. The reports give an impression, but are not completely accurate.
